

PROFESSOR HANNA PRACTICE DURING COVID 19

ADVICE TO PATIENTS

Professor Hanna has reviewed his practice arrangements during the period of the COVID 19 outbreak

The intention is to continue to offer a responsive expert neurological service and at the same time to maximise safety for all new and follow-up patients wishing to be assessed by Professor Hanna.

From 20.3.20 all consultations with Professor Hanna (NHS and private) will be virtual consultations in the first instance- they will be by phone, skype, whatsapp or Face-Time depending on the patient preference.

For new patients it is preferable to be skype and Face Time so a virtual clinical examination developed by Professor Hanna can be undertaken. For follow-up patients phone skype or Face Time are all fine.

Following virtual assessments Professor Hanna will discuss an appropriate investigation and management plan with each patient.

If there is medical urgency based on the virtual consultation, Professor Hanna can arrange appropriate assessment of any patient in person.

If private, as always, the patient is responsible for consultation fees and if they have insurance, they should always check in advance with their insurers. Where insured, insurers have advised they will cover remote consultations during COVID 19 in the same way as for face to face consultations in line with a patient's policy. Always check with your insurer.

The rates for new and follow up private consultations with Professor Hanna are unchanged from those listed on this website

All rates include full review of any previous records in advance, and post consultation coordination of investigations and results
